Carlile, Charles Anderson, Henry McDonald, Alvin Johnston, Charles Carlile, Jessie Nelson, Dolphia Sessions, Hyrum Anderson and Forest Luke. Charlie and Hyrum Anderson were not ward members, but were experienced timber men and so were asked to head the project.

The actual work of building the meeting house began March 16, 1914, with James Heber Moulton as construction supervisor. Members of the building committee included John H. Luke, Elisha Cummings, John W. Giles, John D. Fisher, Joseph A. Murdoch, David A. Broadbent, James H. Moulton, Joseph A. Rasband, William A. Davis, Harry Morris, John E. Moulton, Henry L. McMullin and John W. Crook.

Working together, the members of the ward were able to put up the building in record time. By December 26, 1915 the building was ready for dedication. It was built to seat 400 people, and on the day of dedication, 390 persons were in attendance to hear Elder Frances M. Lyman of the Council of the Twelve offer the dedicatory prayer.

In his financial report, Bishop Rasband noted that the entire cost of the building, with furnishings, was $19,415.74. For its time, it was considered the finest church building in the stake. Because of its central location, the Second Ward Chapel has been a favorite gathering place for community and civic functions.

With the building now nearly 50 years old, and with the need for a larger, more modern building, the bishopric is again making the ward "building fund conscious," and in the near future it is expected that another beautiful chapel will be constructed.

When Bishop Rasband was released in 1926, Henry Clay Cummings was called as the next bishop. He chose George Nelson and Leonard Giles as counselors and Dean Fortie as clerk. They served together until 1928 when Bishop Cummings was called to be a counselor in the Stake Presidency of the Wasatch Stake. Fredrick G. Carlile was sustained as the new bishop and he retained George Nelson and Leonard Giles as counselors. Reed Rasband later served as a counselor and J. Sylvan Rasband and Albert Crook were clerks.

Wendell Duke succeeded Bishop Carlile in 1939 and had as counselors Squire Simpson and Owen Buell with Jay McNaughton as clerk. They served together until 1944 when Leonard Giles was called as Bishop. Counselors to Bishop Giles included George Nelson, Robert S. Watson, Rulen Carlile, Walter Seiter and Floyd Kinsey. Clerks during this time were Rulen Carlile, Floyd Kinsey, Walter Seiter and Glen Moulton.

Bishop Nymphus C. Watson was sustained in 1951 with counselors Rulen Carlile and Walter Seiter. Glen Moulton was clerk. This bishopric served until 1954 when the ward was divided, creating the new Heber Fifth Ward. The dividing line between the two wards was an-was later incorporated with other holdings to form the "Star of Utah," which in turn became the New Park Mine.

The first major effort to produce ore in Wasatch County was the McCune Tunnel. This was driven into the mountains west of Keetley before the turn of the century, but to no avail. About the same time the McHenry Shaft was sunk in the same area, but the unfortunate prospectors, it was later discovered, missed a vast vein of ore by only 18 feet.

Another mining adventure, The St. Louis-Ontario, was conducted directly above the spot where the portal of the drain tunnel was later placed. This project also failed, perhaps because it was focused too high on the Blue Ledge slope.

In spite of these failures, the lure of gold and other precious metals enchanted many and prospecting continued. In the early 1900's the East Utah shaft was sunk, and modest fortunes sank with it. In 1905 the Columbus Tract on Bonanza Flat was worked until lack of capital ended the venture.

Further down the slope in the Glen Allen, sometimes known as the "Glencoe" excavation, hundreds of thousands of dollars were invested in determined efforts to locate pay dirt. A refining mill was constructed on the property through which discovered ore was reduced to concentrate. In 1907 John Fisher and Gail Fisher took a contract to transport this refined ore from the mill to the Denver and Rio Grande Depot in Heber City, a distance of about 12 miles. However, the Allen fortune was spent before the coveted silver vein was located.

The project "Vallejo" lay further south in the mountains west of Jordanelle, and was worked intermittently for several years, even though a heavy percentage of iron in the ore made transportation a serious problem.

William Trevithick and John Fisher leased the Vallejo property and supplied work for many Wasatch County miners and teamsters until this venture too ended in disaster. George McDonald, one of the teamsters, was headed toward Heber City with a wagon load of ore and when he drove onto the Provo River bridge northwest of the present Heber Light and Power plant, the bridge buckled, sending him and half his wagon one way and the team and the rest of the wagon and ore the other way. Mr. McDonald escaped alive, but the wagon and team were lost, and the bridge was gone. Because the ore from Vallejo could not command sufficient price to warrant construction of a new bridge and better road, the project failed.

Another persistent attempt at prospecting for ore in northern Wasatch County was the Nelson-Green, which was located in rolling hills some two miles east of Lee's Ranch. After several years of effort, the Nelson Brothers of Park City sold the property to Daniel Knold, who renamed it the Park Knold, and continued to work his claim with some profit.

The major mining development in the Keetley area began about 1921 when the Park Utah Mining Company was formed. The company con-

FISHER, Joseph H., president of the High Priests' Quorum of the Millard Stake and a resident of Meadow, Millard county, Utah, was born Oct. 18, 1856, in Fillmore, Utah, the son of James Fisher and Hannah Lees Stott. He was baptized Nov. 18, 1865, by Daniel Thompson; ordained a Deacon by John Ashman when a boy; ordained an Elder March 14, 1879, by William H. Stott; ordained a Seventy Nov. 26, 1883, by Abraham H. Cannon and subsequently chosen as a president of the 42nd quorum of Seventy. In 1897-1900 he filled a mission to the Hawaiian Islands, where he assisted in the erection of a beautiful church building at Hilo (island of Hawaii) which was dedicated by President Joseph F. Smith. Subsequently he labored in Honolulu and still later at Laie where he built a small school house, and a furnace, covering a boiler, which furnished power for a $24,000 pumping plant. At home, Bro. Fisher has been very active in public affairs. He acted as the first president of Y. M. M. I. A. at Meadow and served as an officer in the same organization several times afterwards. He also served as an assistant Sunday school superintendent. He was ordained a High Priest Jan. 22, 1901, by Francis M. Lyman and set apart as first counselor to Bishop Neil M. Stewart. Subsequently he served as first counselor to Bishop John A. Beckstrand. He also served as president of the Meadow town board about three years, served two terms as school trustee and had charge of the construction of the Meadow town water system. was a thesis, "The Voice of Heber Valley," written by the late Mervin G. Fairbanks in 1967 while he was a professor at the BYU.

The biggest story printed in the first issue of The Wasatch Wave, March 23, 1889, was the newspaper's own birth. The "delivery room" was a north room of the County Courthouse, and it was brought into the County by William Buys. In that first issue, he explained why he chose such an unusual name for his four-page country newspaper.

"In writing The Wasatch Wave, we realize that it is but a tiny ripple upon the great ocean of journalism, but we sincerely hope and trust that it may grow and gather strength as it proceeds on its perilous journey. We are also aware that there are breakers in its course against which it may run and be dashed to pieces, and the great commotion caused by the shock be scarcely perceptible upon the broad expanse of the vast literary sea; yet we should feel the effects of the disaster most keenly; we shall, therefore, use every effort in our power to avoid the possibilities of such a fate overtaking us."

Buys offered subscriptions to the paper for $2.50 a year, payable in cash, produce, or credit with local merchants. Advertisers could buy a column inch for 25 cents.

During those first years, it sometimes took five employees, working with several varieties of handset type to put the paper out on time every Friday.

Because Buys was one of the principal stockholders in the company that inaugurated publication of The Wave, technically he was its publisher until his death. He also took several turns at being editor, the final time on June 10, 1898 and held the title the rest of his life.

Buys was a delegate to Utah's

4, 1895, where he helped frame a constitution for the 45th state to enter the Union. He was also a teacher and attorney, served as Wasatch County attorney and Heber City attorney, was a member of the School Board of Trustees and the County School Board of Examiners, and was County Surveyor for a short time.

Many said it was a good thing he had ways of making a living outside of the newspaper, because it was on shaky financial ground until many years after it left his hands.

Buys' obituary, printed in The Wave Dec. 3, 1909, gave him credit for being "one of the leaders in procuring the telephone, the railroad, the waterworks, the electric light, in fact, he was a leading advocate and indefatigable worker for every public improvement we have made since he took up his abode with us over thirty years ago."

George H. Barzee was one of those who took a turn editing the paper while Buys was publisher. At the same time, he was Heber's first telephone operator. His daughter, Emily Conrad, wrote:

"He didn't get many phone calls at first, but he would run up and down the street trying to find the people wanted on the phone."

The Wave office and printing facilities moved from the Courthouse to the upper room of the Mark Jeff's Store and six years later moved to a suite of rooms in Hatch's Row, on the east side of Main Street. Finally, in 1903, The Wave found a permanent home in its own new building at 31 West Center Street.

Articles of Incorporation filed March 3, 1905, changed the name of the corporation to The Wave Publishing Company. The company was to do business in general printing, publishing, lithographing, book binding, publish and circulate a newspaper, become a general supply business, and stationery and office

C. O. Gianville and Joseph A. Murdock took over as co-publishers of the newspaper about three years after Buys' death. Murdock's son, Harold, who transported copies of The Wave to the post office in his "little red" wagon when he was small, recalled:

"We didn't have to print both sides of the paper then. We bought it from Salt Lake already printed on one side (ready print), and all they had to do was set type for one side and run it through the press. I still remember how those old wooden arms flopped a sheet over onto the stack and then flopped back for another page."

Charles Broadbent became The Wave's editor in January, 1910, and eventually bought the business. By that time The Wave was in so much financial trouble that he didn't draw any wages during his first year in order to save the business. According to his son, Clyde:

"It's liabilities were far more than its assets. I think there were only about 300 subscribers and mother had to go teach school to earn money to feed the family. There were no assets at the paper and the stock had been declared all but worthless. It seems like I remember my father saying that if they sold everything there was in the place at a good price, we would still be several hundred dollars in debt."

The Wave became a Broadbent family enterprise, with the family members dividing their time between working at the paper and tending to a livestock business. Clyde recently said the years he worked at the newspaper "were the hardest of any in my life."

In 1939, after almost 30 years as editor and publisher, Broadbent, with the approval of his family, sold The Wave Publishing Company to John A. Wallis.

Wallis conducted a campaign to increase circulation so he could justify raising advertising rates. He offered commissions and $1,500 in prizes to anyone who could sign up new subscribers. A 1941 Chevrolet, Philco refrigerator and Philco radio were the top prizes.

Wallis reported, "We didn't make anything on that campaign except to add to our circulation." The cost of prizes, commissions and printing costs for the additional issues "just about took all the profit we had expected to gain."

He reported that the war cut into advertising because of "rationing and war production restrictions. What people wanted to buy nobody had to sell."

When Wallis couldn't meet his financial obligation to buy the newspaper, Broadbent found himself back in the publishing business for one issue. Finally he sold it for good, March 23, 1942. (The Wave's 53rd birthday) to J. Harold and Frank W. Mountford.

The organization grew to three regular employees in it plus local correspondents, a story writer, and a Heber items writer.

Mountford was elected Utah State Press Association of Directors in 1948, became President of the Association in 1952, and President in 1953. The Wave was winning hon general excellence, front makeup, editorials and comm service.

In 1958, Mountford purchased The Washington County News moved to St. George to run turned over the jobs of editing manager to his son Jim, who

In later years a sandstone school building of two rooms was built. As the student population increased two more rooms were added to the building and a modern heating plant installed. An average of four teachers served in this building, which was used until consolidation of the schools when the pupils were taken by bus to Heber City.

Some of the later teachers in the community included LaVar Christensen, Mabel Jorgenson, Charles Madison, Rollo Mahoney, Nile Allison, Emeline Sweet, Lizzie Fisher, Clyde Bramwell, Helen Taylor, P. G. Anderson and Frank Farnsworth.

Center Creek today is a prosperous little country village with some 55 families all living in good homes. Their lives are characterized by kindness and friendliness to all who come into their midst.

Typical of the spirit of the people is an accident in the lives of the Robert Lindsay family, which occurred before the turn of the century.

About a mile above the Lindsay home lived Rasmus Nielson Miller and his family. One day when the family was away, Mrs. Miller was caught in a brush fire and burned to death. In the ensuing months, Brother Miller did his best to care for the family, but soon exhausted the few funds he had.

The ward's second bishop, Walter Montgomery, was sustained February 22, 1931, and chose as his counselors Ralph F. Giles and Irwin T. Hicken. J. Ernest Crook was clerk. Elder Rudger Clawson of the Council of the Twelve was present at the meeting when Bishop Montgomery was sustained. Other clerks included C. Ray Mahoney who succeeded Ernest Crook, July 5, 1931, Joseph W. Witt and Andrew A. Lindsay.

Shortly after Bishop Montgomery was sustained he called a special ward missionary committee and gave them the responsibility to prepare special testimonial and homecoming programs for departing or returning missionaries, to write ward newsletters to those in the field and remember the missionaries on birthdays and at Christmas. Committee members were Florence F. Hicken, Elroy Jones and Mazie W. Hicken.

Leaders of the ward under Bishop Montgomery included the following:

CHOIR: Richard Brierley, Jay R. Smith, Frank Hardy and J. W. Brierly, choristers. Florence F. Hicken, organist.

The third change in bishoprics came on April 6, 1938, when Bishop Ralph F. Giles was sustained, along with his counselors Irwin T. Hicken and J. Linden Chapman. Andrew A. Lindsay and Francis Cowley were ward clerks.

A month after he was sustained, Bishop Giles instituted a landscaping project in the ward and called Geneva B. Cliff as project chairman.

YWMIA: Helen Lindsay, president, with Jean Montgomery and Mabel Fisher, counselors and Elva Smith, secretary until 1939 when Mary Mahoney became president with Venola Cowley and Amy Giles Bond as counselors and Hazel Orgill as secretary.

Isabrand Sander was sustained on November 4, 1945 as the next bishop of the ward, choosing as his counselors J. Linden Chapman and Jay De Graff, with Francis Cowley, ward clerk. Elder Cowley became counselor in the bishopric when Elder De Graff was released, and Verd Murdock was sustained as clerk.

Bishop Sander served as bishop of the ward until April 13, 1947 when the stake presidency proposed a division of the ward to create the new Heber Fourth Ward. Bishop Sander was called to remain as Third Ward bishop, and his counselor, J. Linden Chapman became the Fourth Ward Bishop. New counselors sustained to Bishop Sander were Andrew McConkie and C. Ferris Clegg, with Ray J. Berg, clerk.

The new Heber Third ward was to include the area east of main street from First South to Sixth South, then east one block and south to the Daniel line. The area west of this line was the new Heber Fourth Ward.

Leaders who served with Bishop Sander prior to the division of the ward included:

RELIEF SOCIETY: Annie J. Smith, president, Mina Giles and Luella Fitzgerald, counselors and Ethel Johnson, secretary. In 1946 Kezia Crook became a counselor.

I took the news of the outbreak from Hoberts Creek to Sebel Creek, and very soon afterward the U. S. government sent two companies of cavalry out to help quell the uprising. These troops fought a great many battles with the Indians and finally subdued them. In July, 1880, I brought in the pony express from Ruby Valley, Nevada, to Salt Lake City, a distance of 200 miles, in about thirty-five hours, with only sixteen changes of horses. The Indians had stolen the animals, killed the station keepers, and burned the stations down, where they should have been other changes. Later, I rode pony express for one year between Salt Lake City and Rushville.

In November, 1880, I carried the mail to a great election returns from Salt
